FLYING HIGH

HACKNEY'S parks and green spaces now boast an amazing 29 Green Flag awards, its highest-ever total, thanks to the hard work of the Council's parks and green spaces team and a host of volunteers.

The latest award winners were St Thomas' Square Gardens, E9, and Mabley Green, E9, taking the Council-managed total to 25.

The four other Green Flag recipients in the borough were Woodberry Wetlands (managed by London Wildlife Trust); St Leonard's Churchyard (New Hanbury Project); and community projects St Mary's Secret Garden and Hackney Community Tree Nursery.

The international award scheme, now in its 22nd year, recognises the world's best maintained green spaces. The awards demonstrate that these parks are not only well kept, but that they boast excellent visitor facilities and meet high environmental standards.

At the southern region celebration event for the awards, held at Hackney Town Hall on 19 July, the Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, said: "To think that 40 per cent of our parks are now recognised as some of the very best in the country is truly amazing and a great testament to the staff on the ground who, in all weathers, are making sure that our parks are welcoming, high quality and meeting the needs of the borough's residents.

"However, there is always more to do, and that is why we have made the commitment to ensure that around 50 per cent of the borough's parks will hold a Green Flag award by 2022."

Two of Hackney's parks have recently received Heritage Lottery Funding, with £3 million of works commencing this year at Springfield Park and a further £300,000 being granted to develop plans for Abney Park Cemetery.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: "Green spaces are one of the many reasons we love and take pride in Hackney. Without the help and dedication of the Council's Parks and Green spaces service, we would not be able to maintain their high quality.

"So I would like to take this opportunity to thank the hardworking staff who keep these parks looking spectacular.

"I would like to also offer our congratulations to the four other Green Flag award-winning sites in the borough, which are managed by other organisations. Having 29 award-winning spaces in the borough is truly astonishing."

Quay to opportunity

A VACANT Olympic Park site will be developed into affordable work and community spaces for local people, after planning application was granted last month.

London-based company Make Shift is behind the approved proposal, which will turn the 6,100 square metre Clarnico Quay site, across the water from Hackney Wick, into 12 workshops for small businesses and 22 studios for designers and artists. Two further spaces will host cultural and creative events, while two restaurants, a pub, and a food hall for street food kiosks will also occupy the site until 2025, when it is scheduled to be used for housing.

James Leay, Managing Director of Make Shift, said: "We're thrilled to receive the planning consent for Clarnico Quay and take the next step in bringing this exciting new project to life.

"Clarnico Quay brings something completely different to this area of London, and we're excited to continue engaging with the local community in the coming months to shape the project and make sure it creates real impact for local people and businesses."

Make Shift's latest plan for Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park was praised for its 'exemplary consultation of the area and local people'.

Over 300 local people contributed to the plans through events, school workshops, focus groups and interviews, influencing the final design and resulting in a community garden and skate park being included in the proposal.

Designed specifically to create a positive impact in the local community, the project is predicted to support more than 240 jobs. At least 70 per cent of its work spaces would be provided to local people, while 20 per cent of its studios and maker spaces would be offered at reduced rates to social enterprises.

The two event spaces would also be for free for local groups to hire, at least 25 per cent of the time.

Following the model established at the company's Pop Brixton project, tenants would be expected to share their skills with local people, contributing a minimum of an hour each week to workshops, volunteering and events.

Meanwhile, 10 per cent of the project's profits would be used to create a community fund that would support more local activity.

Construction is scheduled to start in September, and it is hoped that the site will open next summer.

Kingsland Market reborn

The relaunched Kingsland Market, between The Fox and Haggerston pubs, attracted new and old customers and traders

A SET of vintage glasses, an Elvis record and some retro 1960s curtains were just some of the bargains that visitors picked up at the relaunch of Kingsland Market.

Hundreds of residents attended the re-opening of the historic market on 28 July, which now trades every Saturday between 9am-5pm.

The market, located on Kingsland Road, E8, between The Fox and Haggerston pubs, originally started in 1880 as a 'waste' market for people to trade their unwanted goods.

In 2015 trading had dwindled to just one stall, but that sole remaining stall holder, Harry West, who is also Head of the Kingsland Market

Traders Association, worked tirelessly with the Council and local business to bring the market back.

Now, in keeping with 138 years of tradition, the relaunched market is once again home to antiques and pre-loved items, as well as having the traditional 'waste' traders.

Harry joined Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Markets, to reopen the market. Cllr Nicholson said: "It's great to see the market back on its feet and in keeping with its traditional roots. I went down to talk to traders

"I met many happy customers who welcomed the market and its affordable price. It's an exciting opportunity" and welcome visitors, and ended up coming home with some great bargains myself!"

The market attracted both new and old customers and traders.

Trader Nanci Lynch, who sells haberdashery goods at the market, said: "I met many happy customers who welcomed the market and its affordable prices.

"It's an exciting opportunity to revive this historical market."

Resident Janet Nkasaah added: "The market is great, I love the variety of things here. I'm decorating my room and I've just purchased some lovely picture frames to go up on my wall."

News in brief

Free swimming lessons - dive in

FREE family swimming lessons at Kings Hall Leisure Centre, in Lower Clapton, have already made a splash. Now the Council, in partnership with Better, plans to introduce free family swimming sessions at London Fields Lido between 20 to 24 August and 28 to 31 August. The lessons are for children aged five and over, including parents who may not be confident enough in the water to take their children swimming.

All young people under 18 can also swim for free anytime with a pay-and-play card at Clissold, Britannia and Kings Hall leisure centres. Over 60s, disabled users and their carers are also eligible for free swimming in the borough, including at London Fields Lido.

For free family swimming sessions at London Fields Lido, registration at the pool reception desk is required, with bookings for each session running on a first come, first served basis. The sessions run from 9-10am and from 10-11am.

For more details, visit: www.better.org.uk/leisure-centre/london/hackney/news/free-swimming-for-under-18-s-and-over-60-s

Advice on children's car seats

PARENTS will be able to get free advice on fitting children's car seats, and learn more about in-car safety at two Council road safety drop-in events taking place over the next two weeks. The drop-ins take place between 10am and 3pm on 14 August and 22 August at the car park at Morrisons, Stamford Hill, N16.

Council's firm pledge to help Windrush generation

HACKNEY Council has become the first local authority in the UK to pass a motion regarding the Windrush generation, pledging to oppose the criminalisation of Windrush families, celebrate an annual Windrush Day and press for a public enquiry into the recent scandal.

On 7 August, the Council agreed it would actively campaign for an end to all 'hostile environment' policy measures and to continue to call on the Government to enable the Windrush generation – people from the Caribbean who arrived in Britain between 1948 and 1971, initially on the ship HMT Empire Windrush – to acquire British citizenship.

While it welcomed the recent announcement by the Government to make 22 June each year an annual celebration of those who arrived from the Caribbean, the Council pledged to press the Prime Minister to call for an independent public enquiry into the Windrush scandal.

Cllr Carole Williams said: "The Government needs a plan of action to bring those who have wrongly been deported back – and provide proper compensation to all those who have been wronged."

Share your Windrush generation stories

AS part of the ongoing celebrations, local project Connect Hackney is calling on the borough's Windrush generation to share their stories for a commemorative book it is producing. The book is set to be unveiled at the Windrush tea party, at Hackney town Hall, on 3 October.

In a recent survey, 1 in 10 girls in the UK said had been unable to afford sanitary products they need each month

DID YOU KNOW?

By Harriet Worsley

THE summer holidays should be a time for hatching plans: where to meet friends, what to wear... Not 'what if I get my period?'

Recent research, however, reveals that this is a serious concern for the 40 per cent of girls in the UK who have struggled to afford to buy sanitary products.

Which is why Gemma Abbott and Elise Evans find themselves sorting through boxes of tampons and towels, piled high as pyramids in one room of Gemma's house.

The two friends are the joint founders of The Red Box Project Hackney North and Stoke Newington. Its aim is simple: to ensure that no girls suffer from 'period poverty'.

At the end of last year the charity Plan International UK released research showing that an astonishing one in 10 girls in the UK had found themselves completely unable to afford the sanitary products they need every single month.

For many, this means they are sometimes unable to go to school. That this 'period poverty' could exist in a first world country like Britain was a shock to many, not least a group of friends in Portsmouth who decided to take action.

To ensure that young women would not miss out on their education because they couldn't afford the products they needed, they decided to offer secondary schools in their area a box that would be constantly restocked with sanitary wear. They were not entirely sure whether schools would want them.

In fact, not only did their local schools embrace the idea, but it spread like wildfire across the UK.

Elise says: "When we decided to start up a Red Box Project in Stoke Newington in March, we thought we would start

Two Hackney pals have launched a project to help schoolgirls facing period poverty

How to box clever

Gemma Abbott and Elise Evans, joint founders of The Red Box Project Hackney North and Stoke Newington, stand outside Young Hackney Stoke Newington Youth Hub with their children with just our local school. But when we started calling schools, we found that members of staff could immediately call to mind pupils who are regularly missing school because of period poverty.

"Everywhere we went, schools were telling us that they were already providing towels and tampons on an ad hoc basis, out of their own pockets."

Five months later, Gemma and Elise now supply 28 local schools with red boxes. It has evolved into a 'three-day-a-week job', although both of them do so on a purely voluntary basis. Gemma and Elise have provided donation boxes to local businesses and community spaces, enabling people to give packs of sanitary products like tampons and towels.

They then collect these and put them into boxes, which are delivered to schools and libraries in north Hackney.

At the schools posters are put up advising all pupils that they can get free sanitary products, discreetly, from a designated place or member of staff.

Halfway through the box, Elise and Gemma's contact details are placed, so that when supplies fall below that level, a member of staff can either call or email them.

The cost of sanitary wear

A survey conducted by Plan International UK and Opinion of 1,004 girls aged 14-21 showed out of those living in London:

The box is replenished within 48 hours. The idea, says Gemma, is: "No tearful panics in the loo. No wadded-up toilet roll. No missed lessons or staying at home. No anxious embarrassment. Period poverty is a gender inequality issue.

No wadded-up toilet roll. No missed lessons or staying at home. Period poverty is a gender inequality issue

"Ultimately, the UK needs structural changes to address it, but in the meantime we want to reach every local school who needs us, to stop this injustice happening."

Gemma and Elise work alongside a sister organisation, which provides red boxes to schools in South Hackney. But when the summer holidays began to draw near, they realised that they were facing a problem. What would the girls who rely on their boxes do, when school closed? To that end, they have begun working with Young Hackney youth hubs, ensuring that red boxes are placed in them and girls can find them during the summer holidays.

The boxes now live in The Edge, N4; Forest Road, E8; Stoke Newington, N16; and the Concorde, E9.

The partnership is successful, but it poses another problem. "We need help in terms of storage," says Gemma. "Right now, we are storing donations under our beds, in the car boot, anywhere we can find space. If anyone in Stoke Newington has available and accessible storage, we would love to hear from them. We need to be able to access it at short notice and sometimes at unsociable times."

In the meantime, the pair are putting boxes together for the youth hubs, at Gemma's kitchen table, with the help of their young children.

"We like to say it's done with love," says Elise, "because we put a lot of thought into what goes into them. We make sure there's a range of products, so that girls can choose the one that's right for them."

They also include plain cotton pants in different sizes, and brown paper bags so that girls can take products away discreetly.

"We had each of them stamped with a message that reads 'you matter'," explains Elise. "Because it can be humiliating and embarrassing to suffer from period poverty."

"It's important for them to know that someone has their back."

As the sun shines over the city on a warm summer evening, sounds of trainers squeaking and laughter can be heard from the Copper Box Arena, where a group of residents get together for a weekly football session.

The match, at Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, is organised by Salaam Peace, a sports-based programme based in Hackney and Waltham Forest, which works to deliver a range of projects for residents to engage them in healthy and positive activities.

The programme has its roots in the aftermath of the 7/7 London bombings. Founder Sabir Bham put the project together following discussions with various organisations to support efforts to curb extremism in East London.

Sabir, who grew up in Hackney and attended Homerton House Secondary School, was rewarded for his efforts with a regional Unsung Heroes award at the BBC Sports Personality of the Year awards in 2012.

Fast forward six years and the project has an extensive reach and programme. It runs events for boys and girls from the ages of two and up.

And it welcomes those who are newly out of prison to join, to help them to assimilate back into society, as well as build stable relationships with people.

Walking into the Copper Box Arena on 16 July to watch one of the groups playing football, I am amazed by how much fun the teams were having.

The happiness in the room is contagious – a stark contrast to many of the experiences and circumstances of those involved in the game.

Shared goals

A project to help residents lead healthy and positive lives is also giving people leaving prison the confidence to assimilate back into society

“A few people who come here have been having a hard time, this allows them to feel positive you can see the change”

KW* joined the project three years ago. He says: “I wanted to join because you’re not judged by anyone, everyone gets on here, everyone understands that each person has different circumstances. “We all get together and play football, we don’t always play with the same people, so you get to meet new people. We have some new players today and they fit right in. That’s part of the appeal, nobody feels judged.”

He adds: “For most people it’s an escape. I know where most people end up going, I think the rate of re-offending is quite high. I am not tempted to go back down that path.

“Prison was just sitting around all day doing nothing, so for the first couple of weeks after coming out my head was spinning because I’m not used to this place. This project helps us adjust and get back into the normal world. I’m very grateful.”

Back on the pitch, it’s hard to keep track of the score, but it seems here, at least, winning is not the aim of the game – enjoying yourself is.

BL, another player, says: “There are a few people who come who have been having a hard time, this allows them to feel positive, you can see the change in their behaviour.

“It’s a really mixed group. When we come together to play football the age range is from 16 to 60, and there’s a variety of things we can do. It’s not just football – for example

The views of the players

Participants in the Salaam Peace football match share their views of the project:

JW: "I come from an extremely educated background, some of these guys don't. Like with me and my circumstances, my path was supposed to be, you know, the guy that was a banker. Life throws some obstacles in the way, not everything goes to plan. Things like this keep me sane; the free gym, the access to football. It helps most guys, it gives a little bit of freedom, a little hope. The project definitely empowered me, without a doubt."

BL: "I joined Salaam Peace around the time when it first started. I was at school, we played a lot of football in Hackney in Mabley Green, ever since then I've been involved. We've done a lot of work with disabled people, younger people, older people... I myself went to prison for four years, came back out and was trying to get back on my feet, so I contacted the programme again and started playing some football and doing some coaching. I think it's a good way to keep people out of trouble, a lot of our events are accessible because they are free."

MK: "I've been in the project for about 10 months now. This project has helped me a lot, it's kept me out of trouble. It's nice, it takes you back to when you were a kid. We're having fun – that's what it's all about, having fun and helping people."

Salaam Peace: building a relationship

BASED in Hackney and Waltham Forest, Salaam Peace delivers a range of sports and education-based projects:

- It caters for everybody from ages two and up
- It runs cycling, walking and football projects to engage people in healthy and positive activities
- It welcomes people from all backgrounds, including those out of prison.

- The Copper Box Arena, run by Better, provides use of the stadium for football and access to gym for members
- The heart of the project is to engage people in what they enjoy and build a relationship. Some people who take part today started at age nine. They gain skills which they can transfer into their working lives.

The project has a three-tier referral system:

1. Self-referral: anyone that wants to join can turn up
2. Informal referral: eg, if a police officer sees kids kicking a ball around the streets, they can contact the project and find out about how to get them involved
3. Higher end: eg, someone from probation, school or social services, who is reported to the project as having issues, or wants to engage in the activities.

we go cycling on the weekends or have group gym sessions."

MK, who has been in the project for 10 months, says: "It helps with stress because it keeps me busy and occupied. It's pulling me away from the old me, it's changed me."

"Everyone can see it's changed me. It's made me realise that everything's not out there on the roads. I feel more positive. I would tell anyone who wants to join to not be doubtful and just take the opportunity and go for it."

Hackney's young performers reached a global audience on livestream

Performances by Hackney's up-and-coming artists were livestreamed across the world

OVER 400 people from 10 countries, including Peru and the US, tuned in to watch Hackney's up-and-coming young artists on a video live streaming platform.

The 11 performances, screened on Hackney Live on 20 July, showcased the wide range of musical talent in the borough – from soul and RnB, to indie and jazz fusion.

Edmund Corbluth, 16, from Homerton, who performed on piano with his original song 'Leaving You?', said: "This experience has given me great insight into the world of music and now I have a better understanding of what I want to do in the future."

The show also included a live link with Hackney's sister city, Austin, in Texas. The connection between the two cities was forged in 2014.

The two places are linked through their growing tech scenes and by the fact that both produce world-class musical talent.

Erica Shamaly, who works for the music industry in Austin, said: "Our team in Austin loved watching and hearing the fabulous new talent rising up in East London. Hackney Live is serving as inspiration for our own similar programme launching next year, and we look forward to exploring ways to connect the music communities in both of our cities."

Fred Schmidt, who also works in Austin, added: "Music is the universal handshake between all people. And the reach, quality and accessibility of today's video technology platforms enable us to share our cultural experiences across the oceans, hopefully followed by opportunities to meet in person."

The event, produced by Des Burkinshaw, took place at BSix College, E5, but was broadcast globally through YouTube Live.

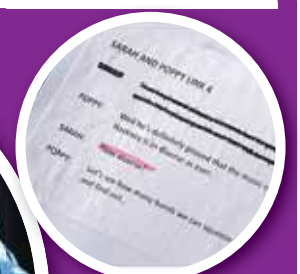

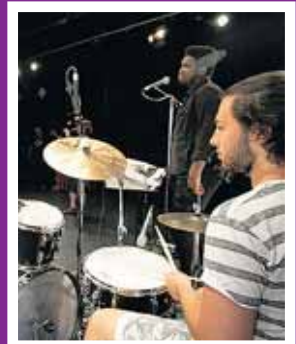

The platform also gave young musicians the chance to perform in some of Hackney's world-class recording venues such as The Premises, The Gun Factory, Route 73, The Vortex and Rising Tide.

of young people who performed in front of the online audience were; Muniboyz, Chiles, Jewels of Thought, Edmund, Zeeno with Ranks and DJ Bradzo, Rraanna, TwinTwo, MARCHESI, Nina Hudson, Assembly and Josh Tenor.

Singer-songwriter Rraanna said: “I feel like this is a great opportunity, it means that so many people can hear my music and I am getting myself out there as an artist.”

Behind the scenes, young people were also given experience in camera techniques, production and social media management, helping to run the show.

Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: “It’s fantastic that we can give local young people the opportunity to show off their talents both on and off the screen.

“Linking up with Austin to give our artists a global reach is an exciting outcome of the fantastic developments in technology over the past few years – helping to promote Hackney’s amazing culture worldwide.”

ACTUALLY applied to study architecture, to keep my parents happy,” says Michael Armitage, laughing. “But I knew I would never be an architect. Rulers have never been my thing, computers even less so.”

Instead, he secretly applied to art school. When he got in, he was faced with the awkward situation of telling his parents. Thankfully, he says: “They were much more supportive than I thought they would be.”

They needn't have worried. Kenyan-born Michael had three solo shows at major international art galleries last year – one at the Turner Contemporary in Margate, another at White Cube, Hong Kong and one more at South London Gallery that art critics called ‘ravishing’, ‘provocative’ and ‘destined for greatness’. Not bad for an artist still in his early 30s.

Michael grew up in Kenya. He was, he says: “About seven or eight when I started drawing a lot, but mostly in pencil and crayon, like lots of little boys.”

At 10 he was introduced to oil paints and something changed: “Oils are an amazing material to feel, they're not like anything else,” he explains. “They have a glow, and colours look so different when they are in oil. I have never looked back.”

When he finished school Michael crossed continents to study at the UCL Slade School of Fine Art in London. The oils, however, went with him and remain his medium today.

He says: “They are such an elusive material to use. You are always trying to create something you have in your head, but it never happens the way you think it should. It's a constant lesson, you're continually humbled.”

Oil painting may be a traditional medium, but little else about Michael's methods are. He paints onto Lubugo, for instance, a bark cloth from Uganda that was traditionally used as a burial garment.

Curriculum Vitae: Michael Armitage

- 1984 Born in Kenya
- 2007 Receives a BA in Fine Art from the UCL Slade School of Fine Art, in London
- 2010 Receives a Postgraduate Diploma from the Royal Academy School, London
- 2017 Has three solo shows: Peace Coma at the Turner Contemporary in Margate, The Chapel at South London Gallery and Strange Fruit at White Cube, Hong Kong

By stitching it together Michael creates giant canvases shaped and pocked by joints and dents that become part of the art itself.

It was these giant canvases that brought him to Hackney: “I needed a lot of space,” he says. But the borough doesn't feature exclusively in his work.

Michael continues: “My internal logic is all London, because living here, studying here, seeing paintings here and meeting people here inform what I do.”

But his art, he says, ‘begins and ends in Kenya’. His paintings vividly evoke the country's folklore and landscape, as well as referencing its social inequalities, politics and occasionally its violence.

“Art isn't a political slogan,” says Michael.

“It doesn't function like an NGO. But it does take you to a very different space, in which you can sit back and contemplate. So I think it does have a very important place in reflections on politics.”

While the work might be all about Kenya, these days Michael works almost exclusively from his Hackney studio.

He has a painting called ‘The Promise of Change’ going into a new exhibition at the White Cube, called Memory Palace, which opened last month. More shows follow next year.

Michael muses: “When everything feels like it's going brilliantly, I usually think something must be going wrong. When things are tricky, I may not cover as much of the canvas, but I'm probably getting somewhere.”

WITH arms full of colourful bounty and eyes watching out over the park, the beloved London Fields Flower Sellers are now back to their former glory after restoration.

The sculpture was originally made by a group of local artists called Freeform Arts Trust, in the 1980s, with the help of local schoolchildren.

The well-loved sculpture is covered in intricate mosaic patterns depicting the different produce that used to be sold – and much of which still is – in Broadway Market.

“I would encourage visitors to see all the flowers and fruits hidden within its design”

The figures are surrounded by sheep, reflecting the importance the area used to hold for grazing animals en route to Smithfield Market in the City of London.

Over the past 30 years, the elements have taken their toll on the statue, so earlier this year the Council hired mosaic artist Tamara Froud from MosaicAllsorts to undertake statue repairs.

Deputy Mayor, Cllr Feryal Demirci, said: “This much-loved piece of public art needed some care after years of being exposed to the weather; it’s great to see it repaired with residents already enjoying sitting around the sculpture.

“I would encourage visitors to visit the sculpture and see all the different types of flowers and fruits hidden within its design.”

The raised beds around the sculpture will be planted later this year when it is cooler.

News in brief

Still time to design a parklet in place of a parking bay

THERE are less than two weeks left for residents to come up with ideas to host a mini-park – or parklet – on their street. This is part of a new trial that will see 15 parking bays across the borough transformed into small green spaces.

The parklets will replace individual parking bays on streets for community use, from one to six months, helping to reclaim Hackney’s roads from cars.

Ideas could include planters, benches, games, notice boards or anything else people can think of.

Successful applicants will be able to access grants of up to £150 to help with the cost of setting them up.

Applications close on 26 August. Residents can find out more and apply to host a parklet at: www.hackney.gov.uk/parklets

Ridley Road Market free lunch

THE North London Waste Authority and Keep Britain Tidy are hosting a series of ‘Waste Less, Lunch Free’ events across north London to highlight delicious meals made from ingredients that would have otherwise been wasted. People will be able to tuck in to free, freshly cooked dishes such as vegetable curry, veggie ragu pasta, summer fruit pancakes and banana bread.

The event reaches Ridley Road Market, E8, on 17 August. In addition to the free tasters of food, there will also be live cookery demonstrations.

For more details visit: www.keeptobritaintidy.org

Residents wise up to waste with plastics campaign

CLISSOLD Park hosted an event this month aimed at reducing people’s reliance on single-use plastics.

The Wise up to Waste campaign, run by the North London Waste Authority (NLWA), is a partnership of seven north London councils – including Hackney – which works together on increasing recycling rates.

The event at Clissold Park was aimed at informing residents about the harm single-use plastics cause and encouraging them to use refillable bottles instead.

Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy, Sustainability and Community Services, said: “We’re proud to support the Wise up to Waste campaign and help people lower their use of single-use plastics.”

In conjunction with the event at Clissold Park, the park’s cafe has become the first in north London to become a water refill station, where residents can top up their reusable water bottles for free.

Businesses can sign-up to become a water refill station at: www.wiseuptowaste.org.uk/refill

PUBLIC NOTICE

Proposed waste and recycling collection times

Hackney Council is consulting residents and businesses on plans to collect waste and recycling between set times. Time banded collections already run on many high streets in the borough to ensure busy highways are kept clear.

The introduction of time banded collections will mean that residents and businesses will only be allowed to place their waste out for collection at the specified dates and times set out within the proposals. Homes and businesses will have two time bands each day during which waste and recycling can be collected, one in the morning and one in the evening.

Roads proposed for the time banding scheme are listed below.

Residents and businesses can give their views on the proposals in writing to the Environmental Enforcement Team at the above address or by emailing enforcementsupport@hackney.gov.uk Consultation closes on 10th September 2018.

The Craft Half

2 Sep, Lee Valley Regional Park, EN2 9HG

FOLLOWING a successful debut event in February, The Craft Half will be returning to London next month – but this time at Lee Valley.

The Craft Half, organised by children's charity Street Child, is a half marathon with a tasty difference – runners are rewarded with half pints of craft beer at fuelling stations every two miles. There is also the option of a 10K run which has all the perks of the Craft Half but is just one lap of the route. After the run, all runners and supporters are invited to attend the 'Halfter Party' with live music, street food and more craft beer. All participants are asked to fundraise £150, which is enough to help five children go to school for a year, in support of Street Child's work to give some of the world's most vulnerable youngsters the chance to go to school.

Race entry is £25 and participants will receive six half pints of craft beer around the course (three half pints for 10K runners) plus a limited edition Craft Half running top, an exclusive commemorative pint glass for crossing the finish line and access to the Halfter Party. Discounts are available for groups of six or more.

ADALSTON teenager has been selected to play rugby for England.

Amber Kirwan, 17, represented England at the Under-18s Rugby Sevens Home Nations tournament on 8 July. She and her teammates beat Scotland 34-0 but finally lost to Ireland 10-19.

Amber, who was born in Hackney, joined the Hackney RFC's community session at Haggerston Park in 2016, where she was immediately identified as 'a natural athlete,' according to Hackney Girls' coach Sarah March.

She now attends weekly junior club sessions, and is coached by Steve Wagstaff and Amy Turner, who was part of the side that made it into the 2010 Women's World Cup final.

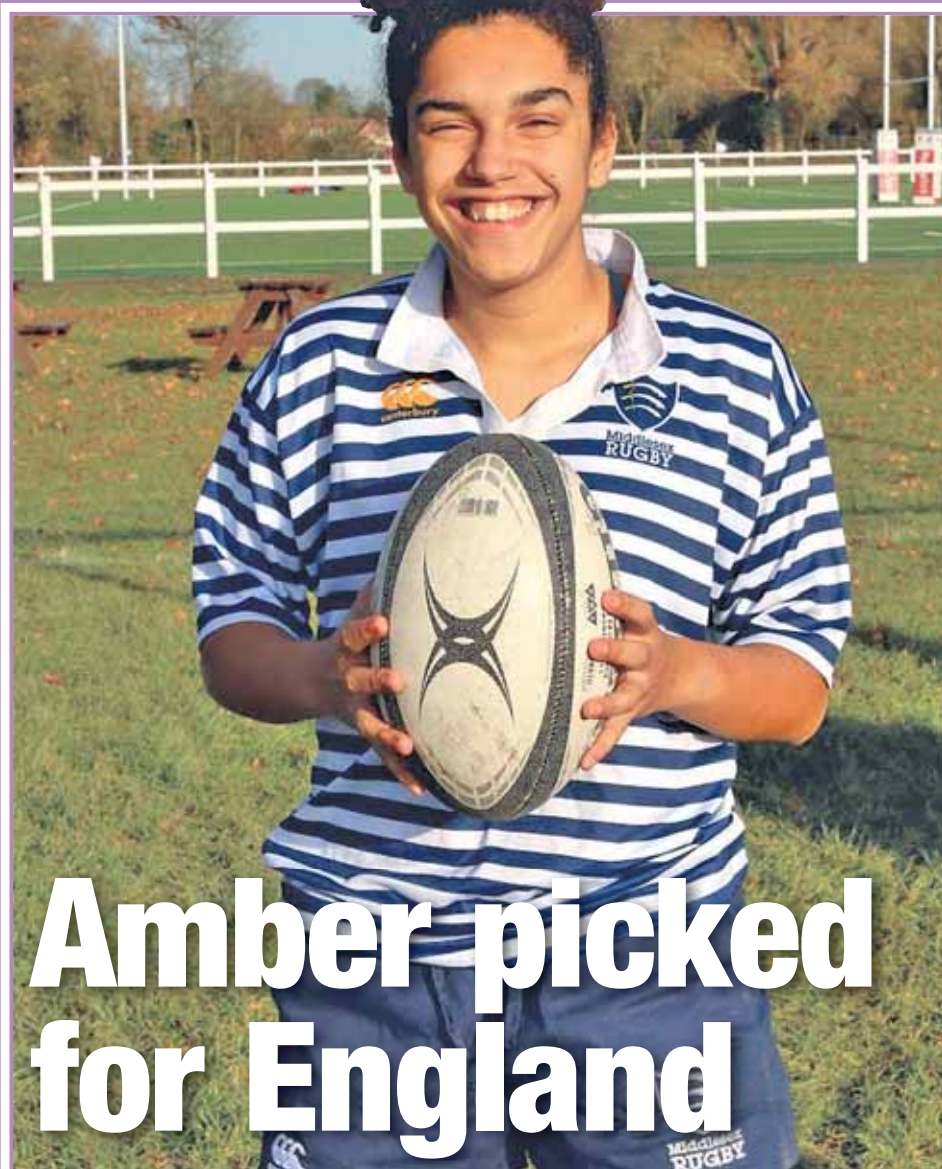

Amber said: "I never thought I'd get an opportunity like this, it's all down to the encouragement and support of the club; they have all been really wonderful.

"I've been invited to a talent development group selection camp at the end of the summer and hopefully, if all goes well, it'll mean that I can be selected for more fantastic opportunities like this."

She was also selected to play for Middlesex County this season and for the Saracens Centre of Excellence.

Hackney RFC welcomes both beginners and experts.

For over 18s, summer training is on Mondays and Wednesdays, from 7.30-

Amber picked for England

Hackney RFC player Amber Kirwan, 17, represented England at the U-18 Rugby Sevens tournament

9pm at Spring Hill, E5 9BL.

School-age players can attend on Sunday mornings, May to September, from 10am-12noon at Spring Hill, and at Haggerston Park's 3G Pitch, every Friday from 4.30-6pm.

Amrit wins young leader award

A HACKNEY student has been judged a young leader of the year. Amrit Kaur-Pottiwai, a 17-year-old former pupil at Clapton Girls' Academy, won the CVC Young Leader of the Year award on 17 July, after taking part in a Young Leaders Programme run by the children and young people's charity Power2.

Amrit said: "Winning the award meant a lot – I feel like a role model to all the young people on the programme and I'm really proud of that."

Young Leaders is a peer support network for graduates of Power2's Teens and Toddlers programme. It builds self-esteem through workshops and challenges.

Festival highlights career paths

NOT sure what to do next after finishing school? The Next Steps Careers Festival could provide the answers.

The free event is aimed at 16 to 20 year olds who are receiving their GCSE and A-level results this month and are unsure about their next steps on the careers ladder. Hosted by the Council, the event will include one-to-one expert support as well as stalls from over 20 training providers, who will be on-hand to talk about opportunities in a variety of specialisms and industries such as fashion, construction, arts, hospitality, horticulture and media. Young people will also be able to find out about the Council's award-winning apprenticeship programme, and register their interest for future vacancies.

The festival will be at the Assembly Halls, Hackney Town Hall, on 30 August from 1-4pm.

Empire Weekender keeps creative young people on track

OVER 100 young people descended on Hackney Empire for a free creative festival aimed at inspiring the next generation of Hackney's performers and artistic entrepreneurs.

The On Track Weekender, hosted by Hackney Empire's Creative Future's Youth Forum and aimed at young people aged 14 to 25, took place last month.

Developed with help from the Council's Youth Opportunity Fund, it included workshops, panel discussions and debates aimed at giving young people the tools to help them in their careers.

Top creatives at the event included BBC Radio 1Xtra's Faron McKenzie, The Slumflower, Link Up TV's Ade OG, Dazed Digital's Ashleigh Kane and Heart Radio presenter Annaliese Dayes.

Brian Fofana, 18, a member of Creative Future's Youth Forum, said: "It helped me develop all sorts of skills – especially events management. It gave me the chance to have a positive and direct impact on people's future."

Soca, so good!

Participants enjoyed the over-50s Soca aerobics class at Kings Hall

LAST month, more than 100 over 50s took part in a charity Soca aerobics class at Kings Hall Leisure Centre.

Up-tempo Soca music, which is closely related to Calypso, originated from Trinidad and Tobago in the early 1970s.

The class, in aid of Cancer Research UK, was free to attend, with participants donating over £300 to the charity.

People who came also brought photos and shared stories of how they have been affected by cancer.

Katie Foulger, partnership manager at Better, who run Kings

“There was so much great energy in the room and lots of positive feedback from participants

Hall Leisure Centre, said: “There was so much great energy in the room and lots of positive feedback from participants on how much they enjoyed the class.”

As part of Better’s partnership with Cancer Research, leisure centres in Hackney will be hosting additional classes throughout the year to help raise funds for the life-saving research.

Residents can get involved by taking part in local fundraising events, or by organising their own activities to raise money for Cancer Research on behalf of Better. Anyone interested can speak to a member of staff at a leisure centre.

Better runs gyms, classes, football pitches and sports courts at eight locations in Hackney: Britannia, Clissold, King’s Hall and Queensbridge leisure centres, and at London Fields Lido, the West Reservoir Centre, Hackney Marshes Centre and Mabley Green.

New and improved 111 service

PEOPLE in North East London now have access to free clinical support and assessment at any time of day or night under the new NHS 111 Clinical Assessment Service.

The service, which launched earlier this month, sees GPs, nurses, paramedics, and pharmacists giving urgent advice through the free NHS 111 helpline, which is available 24 hours a day, to residents in City and Hackney, Newham and Tower Hamlets. Telephone access to out-of-hours GP appointments is through the NHS 111 Clinical Assessment Service instead of the former CHUHSE number.

The service provides:

- Urgent care advice or treatment outside of normal GP practice opening hours
- Assessments over the phone – along with advice or treatment recommendations from a range of health professionals if required
- Direct booking appointments
- The ability to prescribe medicines over the phone
- Easy access to patients’ records and care plans – with details updated after calls
- Quick transfer to mental health crisis services for assessment or advice.

To use the service call 111 or visit: 111.nhs.uk

Hear all about CCG’s services

RESIDENTS will have the chance to meet with health leaders while hearing more about how money is being spent to provide services by attending the City and Hackney Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) Annual General Meeting.

The event is set to showcase the work of the CCG over the past financial year and review the types of services available to improve and support residents’ health and care.

A workshop session will also give attendees the opportunity to discuss and feedback on views about how the CCG can improve community services. The event is free and takes place at the Tomlinson Centre, E8, on 5 September from 7.30pm to 9pm. Places are limited. To register, visit: www.cahccgagm.eventbrite.co.uk; or call: 020 3816 3222.

Take part in film exploring health influences

A FILMMAKER is looking for Hackney families to feature in a new film about the health influences on their life.

Blueprint Film Foundation, which uses film and multimedia to investigate important issues in society, is looking for local one and two-parent families with children or young adults to take part in the film.

It will ask what they think is important in keeping children and young people healthy and happy, with families encouraged to talk about what they enjoy cooking at home, how easy it is to keep healthy, and what questions or concerns families have about being healthy.

The project, which is supported by the Council and the City and Hackney Clinical Commissioning Group, will then inform how both organisations can further support families looking to be healthy.

Laura Kavanagh, Creative Director at Blueprint Film Foundation, said: “This film is a really exciting opportunity to look at how Hackney families live, and we’d love them to get in touch and be part of the film.”

The documentary will be screened in venues across the borough.

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

SHOREDITCH Trust's Food Programme works with members of the community to encourage affordable healthy eating, cooking skills and food knowledge. Temperatures are high and spending time in a hot kitchen is low on our priority list. These quick and easy recipes can be prepared in advance – in the cooler mornings or evenings – and stored in the fridge until you are ready to eat. Potatoes are a good source of potassium and vitamins, such as vitamins B and C. Cooking and cooling potatoes before you eat them may increase their resistant starch (a kind of fibre) which means they will keep your blood sugar levels steady and help you stay fuller for longer. Cooked potatoes will keep for three days in the fridge. The salads are best eaten within two days.

Potato and green bean salad

Serves 4-6

Preparation time 5 mins
Cooking time 15 mins

Ingredients

- For the salad:
- 500g new potatoes such as Jersey Royals, Rocket or Maris Bard
  - 350g fine green beans
  - 3 eggs
  - ½ bunch of chopped chives or spring onions
- For the dressing:
- 2 tbsp cider or white wine vinegar
  - 4 tbsp olive oil
  - 1 tsp honey
  - 1 tsp Dijon mustard
  - Black pepper to season

Method

- Wash the potatoes and chop into

- bite-size pieces. Boil or steam the potatoes for approximately 10-15 minutes (or until they are soft) and leave to cool, ideally overnight
- Place eggs in a pan of boiling water for 5 minutes. Remove from heat and run under cold water
- Cut the ends off the green beans. Steam or boil the beans until they are slightly tender but not soft. They should take approximately 3-5 minutes to cook in boiling water. Leave the beans to cool
- Combine all the ingredients for the dressing together. You could do this by shaking them in a jam jar, or whisking in a bowl
- Mix the dressing through the cooled potatoes and beans, peel and slice the eggs and add to the salad.

Greek salad

Serves 4

Preparation time 10 mins
Cooking time 0 mins

Ingredients

- For the salad:
- Handful of black olives
  - 3 tomatoes, diced
  - 1 cucumber, diced
  - ½ onion, diced
  - 1 pack of feta cheese, diced
  - 1 Cos lettuce, chopped
- For the dressing:

- 3 tbsp red wine vinegar
- 4 tbsp extra virgin olive oil
- 2 tbsp dried oregano

Method

- Mix all the salad ingredients together
- Mix the ingredients for all the dressing in a separate bowl
- Pour the dressing over the salad and toss gently
- Serve as a side salad or as a main meal.

Have your say on strategy to tackle inequality in Hackney

RESIDENTS are being asked to have their say on the Council's strategy to tackle inequality in the borough.

Hackney is a diverse and accepting borough, but recently it has undergone rapid growth and change, meaning there are often stark inequalities.

Tackling inequality locally is a mayoral priority. The Council has created a 'single equality scheme' to identify issues of discrimination and ensure services are run in a way that promotes community cohesion. The Council is now asking residents for their feedback on the scheme to ensure it reflects a broad range of equality issues and solutions.

The strategy will help inform decisions over the next decade, from planning documents and community safety to how children's centres are run. The scheme is set to be a backdrop to how all services are designed and delivered.

Cllr Carole Williams,

Cabinet Member for Employment, Skills and Human Resources, said: "We have developed a new single equality scheme which sets out the key objectives and actions which we will take to tackle disadvantage, eliminate discrimination and build a stronger community."

The draft strategy will look to concentrate on three objectives:

- Increase prosperity for all and tackling poverty and socio-economic disadvantage
- Tackle disadvantage and discrimination that is linked to a protected characteristic (age, disability, gender reassignment, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, sexual orientation)

- Building a cohesive and inclusive borough.

To have your say, visit: consultation.hackney.gov.uk; or call Rachel Salmon on: 020 8356 7732 to request a paper copy and find out about focus groups and resident discussions. The consultation closes on 30 September.

WITH students across the country getting ready to receive their exam results and consider their options for university, Hackney Archives has been looking back at these portraits of graduates in the 1970s.

The sitters in these photos are unknown and Archives staff would love to hear from anyone who recognises those featured.

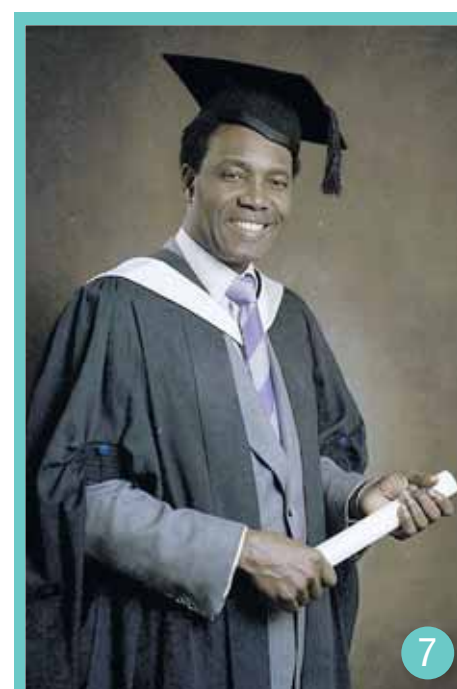

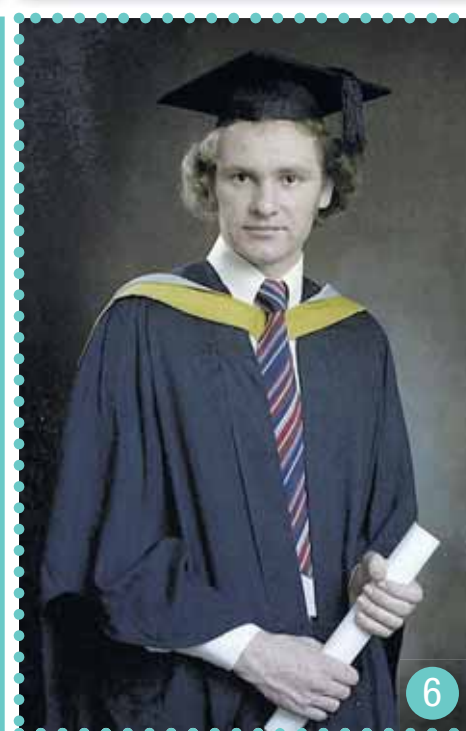

These photos were taken by RA Gibson's studio in Clapton and are part of a huge collection of images taken by the studio that are now held by Hackney Archives, based in Dalston.

A two-year project is underway to digitise the images so that they can be shared with local people at events around the borough and online. A key part of the project involves interviewing people who appear in the photographs so that their stories can be preserved as part of the history of Hackney.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2018. Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville was directly elected by the borough in 2018. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall. To book an appointment, e-mail: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 2212. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney, who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Clare Potter.

The roles of Speaker and Deputy Speaker do not attract a SRA but provision of an allowance is covered by separate legislation 2.

All Members are only permitted to receive payment for one Special Responsibility Allowance at any one time.
3.

Unlike Councillors the Directly Elected Mayor role does not attract a basic or special responsibility allowance. Instead one overarching allowance is paid that takes account of all aspects of the full time role.

Column 1 shows the Member's name; Column 2 shows the basic allowance paid; Column 3 indicates the Special Responsibility Allowance (SRA) paid, which is payable for positions within the Council which hold extra responsibility; Column 4 shows the responsibilities for which Members were paid an allowance; Column 5 shows any travel and subsistence expenses that were paid during the year; Column 6 shows any Childcare/ Dependents' Carers' expenses that were paid during the year; and Column 7 shows the total gross payments made to Members in the Municipal Year May 2017 to May 2018 (or part thereof).

As part of Members' roles and responsibilities they attend formal committees as well as ward meetings and surgeries, and are also appointed to represent the Council on a number of outside bodies. Council appointments to outside bodies can be viewed on the Council's website: <http://mginternet.hackney.gov.uk/mgListOutsideBodies.aspx??bcr=1>

Schedule 2: Independent and Statutory Co-opted Members of the Council for Municipal Year 2017-2018

In the Municipal Year 2017-2018 the standard rate for attendance allowances payable to the Council's Independent and Statutory Co-opted Members was £113.10 per meeting. The attendance allowance was then multiplied by the number of meetings scheduled for the Municipal Year.

The following allowances were paid to the Council's Independent, Statutory and non- Statutory Co-opted members between May 2017 and May 2018 (or part thereof).

Name	Committee	Allowance for 2016-17
